LAW CENTER, MINORITY BUSINESS DEVELOPMENT AGENCY BUSINESS CENTERS PARTNER FOR ANNUAL 'INNOVATION IN AGRICULTURE & ENERGY OPPORTUNITY ZONE SUMMIT'

The Southern University Law Center (SULC) and the Louisiana Minority Business Development Agency Business Center (LA MBDA) joined forces with the MBDA's Federal Procurement Center to orchestrate the highly anticipated IAEOZ Summit which took place October 17-19 at the Embassy Suites Hotel.

Over the course of the dynamic 3-day business development Summit, distinguished figures from the realms of business, commerce, technology, and philanthropy convened to deliberate upon the evolving landscape of farming in the United States. Notably, the spotlight shined on the pivotal role that Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs) and Land Grant colleges play within distressed Opportunity Zones.

This transformative endeavor also underscored a commitment to rekindling prosperity within minority-driven, rural communities. By harnessing the power of these institutions, the Summit aimed to chart a course toward renewed wealth creation, promising a brighter future for these underserved locales.

Summit participants gained invaluable insights into leveraging funds and grants stemming from the Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act and unlocking Government contracting avenues for MBEs, all catalyzed by the groundbreaking Executive Orders 13985 and 14008. Esteemed speakers discussed practical strategies for fostering sustainability and pioneering carbon sequestration endeavors within the realm of agriculture.

Engaging panels delved into the realm of Smart Farming, unveiling the forefront of technological marvels in food production and security. Thought leaders discussed pioneering methodologies and programs to revitalize rural communities, propel job creation, and nurture workforce development. This summit equipped attendees with actionable intelligence, forging a path toward a more resilient and inclusive agricultural landscape.
